Direxion provides a dynamic suite of long and short tactically oriented investment products including:

Core Strategy – The Direxion / Wilshire Dynamic Fund, a broadly-diversified core portfolio holding, uses built-in tactical strategies to capitalize on short-term market inefficiencies, designed for investors seeking to outperform a traditional strategic (long-term only) asset allocation approach.

Managed Tactical Funds incorporate long/short, tactical strategies with exposure to alternative asset classes into 'buy & hold' investments, ideal for investors who value a tactical approach, yet are unable to manage an active strategy on their own.

Tactical Trading Funds are designed for sophisticated investors who understand how to properly manage the risk & volatility inherent in leveraged investments, and have the capacity to monitor and manage their portfolios actively.

*The Funds seek daily leverage results. Each $1 invested provides either $2 (200%/-200%) or $3 (300%/-300%) of exposure to the performance of the fund's benchmark index. The ETFs are intended to be used as short term trading vehicles. There is no guarantee that the mutual funds or exchange traded funds (ETFs) will acheive their objective. No single Fund is a complete investment program.

Direxion imposes a 1.00% redemption fee on the Commodity Trends Strategy Fund, Financial Trends Strategy Fund, and the Direxion/Wilshire Dynamic Fund for shares redeemed within ninety days of the date of purchase.

An investor should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses of the Direxion Funds and ETFs carefully before investing. The prospectuses and summary prospectus contain this and other information. To obtain a prospectus and summary prospectus please visit direxionshares.com (for ETFs) or direxionfunds.com or call 800.851.0511 (for mutual funds). The prospectus and summary prospectus should be read carefully before investing.

Mutual fund shares are bought and sold once daily directly by shareholders in a primary market and are priced once a day based on the closing value of their underlying holdings. ETFs are similar in composition, but trade throughout the day on an exchange.

Investing in index-based mutual funds and ETFs may be more volatile than investing in broadly diversified funds. The use of leverage by a fund means the Funds are riskier than alternatives which do not use leverage. The Funds are not designed to track the underlying index over a longer period of time. The Funds are not suitable for all investors and should be utilized only by sophisticated investors who understand leverage risk, consequences of seeking daily or monthly leveraged investment results, understand the risk of shorting and intend to actively monitor and manage their investments.

The risks associated with the funds are detailed in the prospectuses which include adverse market condition risk, adviser's investment strategy risk, aggressive investment techniques risk, concentration risk, counterparty risk, credit and lower-quality debt securities risk, equity securities risk, currency exchange risk, daily correlation risk, daily rebalancing and market volatility risk, depository receipt risk, foreign and emerging markets securities risk, sector securities risk, IPO risk, interest rate risk, inverse correlation risk, leverage risk, market risk, risks of investing in small- and/or mid-capitalization companies, non-diversification risk, shorting risk, small and mid cap company risk, tracking error risk, and special risks of exchange-traded funds, market timing activity and high portfolio turnover risk, investing in other investment companies and ETFs risk, commodities securities risk, geographic concentration risk, valuation time risk, derivatives risk, commodity-linked derivatives risk, risks of investing in mining and metal industry securities, wholly-owned subsidiary risk, tax risk, options and futures contracts risks, security selection risk, Debt Instrument Risk, Gain Limitation Risk, U.S. Government Securities Risk, Special Risks of Exchange-Traded Funds, and Real Estate Investment Risk. Intra-calendar month investment risk, monthly correlation risk, and negative implications of monthly goals in volatile markets.
